

The reasons for using a Skin Care Collection

We all go to the dentists to check the health of our teeth and gums, we sometimes have to have check-ups at the doctors to ensure our bodies are healthy and fully working order. So why not take care of our skin the largest organ of your body? After all, prevention is better than cure.

How our skin stands the test of time is somewhat genetic as we are all predisposed in a certain way, but wrinkles and fine lines could be significantly reduced by making sure you cleanse tone and moisturise, drink plenty of water and avoid excessive exposure to the sun. The sun is particularly harmful and over-exposure can put you at great risks of suffering from skin cancers.

How you take care of your skin now will greatly affect you in later life, whatever your age!

You are never too young to safeguard your skin. you will reap the benefits of taking care of your skin as when you are older, that little bit of effort you put into your skin when you were younger, will show on the outside. A lot of people assume that when they are young they do not have to take care of their skin because until they are a lot older it does not matter. An older person may say 'it's too late to take care of their skin', 'why change their home care routine?'. This is the reason your skin is a reactive organ that is replacing itself on a regular basis thus many conditions we have in later life can be controlled and removed.

Well we must be thankful to modern facial skin care techniques and tips, the effects of aging on the skin caused by heredity, lifestyle, and environmental factors no longer have to be accepted as permanent.

Most of the facial skin care methods are based on just a few specific processes and principles, which will always lead to a better skin condition and appearance, when used properly.

Here we go with some interesting, simple and easy ways to take care of facial skin.

Cleansing is the single most important step in taking care of skin. It needs to be done twice a day. Never, never go to bed with your makeup on, no matter how tired you are, as the skin repairs and replaces itself you do not want to compromise mitosis (replacement). Cleanse your skin with a face care product that is reliable, one face care tip is to make sure the face care product matches your face skin type (available – Acacia Beauty - skin analysis workshops)

Toners should always be used after ANY CLEANSING PRODUCT, they cool the skin, remove the dirty surface cleansers and ph balance the skin, all of which is a refreshing sensation. This is very important as it keeps intact your acid mantle (see later). Never mix match manufacturing ranges of cleansers and toners as they are developed to work together that includes foaming washes!

Exfoliating should be done once a week, after cleansing; unless no makeup is some exfoliators can act as a cleanser too. The same principle applies, follow with toning. Every three weeks, our skin renews itself by replacing the dead surface cells with new, translucent ones. Exfoliating can keep the skin clear healthy and youthful by encouraging faster cell renewal. Do not exfoliate more than twice a week which is the optimum as your skin could be at risk of sun damage.

Simple moisturizing needs to be done.

Moisturising strengthens skin and protects it against moisture loss. Moisturisers come in day creams and night creams as they perform two different functions. Masques can be used weekly Deep cleanse or Sooth and Hydrate. Now you are aware that applying facial skin care daily can keep your facial skin, clean and neat, soft and smooth and moist. Facial Skin Care becomes quite essential for getting freedom from all kinds of facial skin disorders. See lets have some more information about the reasoning.

The Skins Acid Mantle

For your skin to be at its most healthy and operating at its maximum, therefore looking great, it needs to be kept ph balanced. This allows the skin to maintain its own natural protective shield, also known as the acid mantle. The pH level of your skin should be maintained at 4.5-6 to keep this acid mantle in tact. Scale of 0-14, 7 is neutral, above 7 is alkaline and below is acidic.

If the acid mantle is disrupted the skin can become more prone to damage and infection. The acid mantle can be damaged through using products that are too alkaline such as some soaps, foaming washes, wipes and leaving water on skin (7). The alkaline builds up on the skin and can craze and crack the surface allowing your skin to be attacked by free radicals at worst and make it sensitive at best. The more alkaline on the skin the more sensitive it can become. The skin is able to recreate the acid mantle on its own but it takes up to eight hours to do this and can cause stress to the skin, thus exacerbating the ageing process.

Moisturising

We all know the importance of drinking water, this flushes out all the toxins and waste from the skin leaving it fresh, glowing and youthful. However, we must not neglect our skin on the outside; it needs a certain amount of moisture in order to retain its elasticity and suppleness. It is very important to invest in a good quality moisturiser that is suited to your skin type.

Even oily skin needs to be moisturised although dry skin has a tendency to line and wrinkle far quicker and earlier on than someone with exceptionally oily skin.

Dry skin is also more likely to be very sensitive in the winter; cold conditions can make the skin chapped, sore and inflamed and can lead to other skin conditions such as eczema or psoriasis. Cracked skin also has the potential to harbor germs and bacteria which will lead to infections.
